The world's wisdom is so sure that theirs is the only translation of the cuts below...The world once was sure that the round earth was flat, and that drowning a person proved the guilt of a witch. How about sticking dolls to get even with your enemy? Then there were those learned men of letters who felt that impaling you on a stake or boiling you in oil would save you from hell; or better yet the most learned doctors of time insisting that Pasture was a quack. Oh WELL...! so much for what the world has thought.

These are scans from the Book of Abraham, or "Breathings of the Dead" by secular wisdom?

Leaving us to ask: The BOOK of WHOM? AS IN DUH!

The Adamic/Angel'ish we call English is the grand key to Josephs translations of these parchments..with study and effort one will eventually begin to get more in touch with the still small voice inside and also find the mind capable of rendering parallel pictorial editorials as did Joseph. I call it the kaleidoscope effect...It literally mirrors back many degrees and directions of information.

Print this off and hold it up and look steadily at it for about one minute... then as you look across the top of your computer; close your eyes.. and smile...hold that! Close you eyes and keep them closed a few seconds and you will smile...

Intellectual arguments are of no avail to the wise Doctors...You see what you see, and that is the end of this page....
